Summary of Module

This module introduces students to the discipline of psychology by focusing on a number of core areas. The module begins with a brief introduction to the historical development of psychology and related approaches, whilst also introducing students to possible career opportunities.

The module will then introduce students to the areas of personality, attitudes and behaviourism. The module will then go on to cover other main areas of psychology i.e. child development, memory, intelligence, and perception.

The module also provides opportunities to reflect on the transferable skills gained in the module. Throughout the module, there will be an emphasis on real-world and practical applications.

At the completion of the module student will have experience of the following IamUWS attributes:

- Analytical
- Inquiring
- Collaborative
- Research-minded
- Knowledgeable
- Digitally literate

Indicative Resources
The following materials form essential underpinning for the module content and ultimately for the learning outcomes: The following materials form essential underpinning for the module content and ultimately for the learning outcomes:

Schacter, D., Gilbert, D. Wegner, D., & Hood, B. (2019). Psychology (3rd edition). Palgrave Macmillan: Basingstoke, Hampshire.
(N.B. Although reading lists should include current publications, students are advised (particularly for material marked with an asterisk*) to wait until the start of session for confirmation of the most up-to-date material)

Attendance and Engagement Requirements
In line with the Student Attendance and Engagement Procedure, Students are academically engaged if they are regularly attending and participating in timetabled on-campus and online teaching sessions, asynchronous online learning activities, course-related learning resources, and complete assessments and submit these on time. For the purposes of this module, academic engagement equates to the following: The university is committed to providing a supportive learning environment that actively facilitates student success. In this module, you are considered to be academically engaged if you regularly engage with scheduled live sessions on campus (and occasionally online), including engaging with asynchronous activities online, course-related learning resources, and with timely completion of assessments. Whilst we understand that there may be times when conflicting priorities make participation challenging, for you to gain the most from this programme, it is recommended that you participate in all scheduled live classes and complete your self-directed learning activities in a timely manner. It may be difficult to pass the assessments associated with this programme if you are not regularly engaging with each module's work and classes. We may reach out to check how things are going and offer support if we observe that you have not been attending sessions or completing online activities..

Equality and Diversity
The University's Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Procedure can be accessed at the following link: UWS Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Code. In line with current legislation (Equality Act, 2010) and the UWS Equality, Diversity, and Human Rights Code, our modules are accessible and inclusive, with reasonable adjustment for different needs where appropriate. Module materials comply with University guidance on inclusive learning and teaching, and specialist assistive equipment, support provision and adjustment to assessment practice will be made in accordance with UWS policy and regulations. Where modules require practical and/or laboratory based learning or assessment required to meet accrediting body requirements the University will make reasonable adjustment such as adjustable height benches or assistance of a 'buddy' or helper.
(N.B. Every effort will be made by the University to accommodate any equality and diversity issues brought to the attention of the School)
