Summary of Module

This module helps students to manage both their professional management and research skills through a Continuing Professional Development approach. Students will be supported to set and manage aspirations for their success in the MBA programme and beyond. This will include, 1) approaches to being a successful MBA student, 2) developing a high quality research proposal or exploring research in general for a Dissertation or Professional Project, and 3) planning for future professional development aligned to a chosen pathway of study.

Key skills will be explored and developed, including emotional intelligence, influencing and networking. Cultural contexts will be compared and considered to give context for work and learning. Research skills will be developed and enhanced in order to prepare students to undertake a high quality Dissertation or Professional Project.

Learning and Teaching

In line with current learning and teaching principles, a 20-credit module includes 200 learning hours, normally including a minimum of 36 contact hours and maximum of 48 contact hours.

Students will have the opportunity to attend formal presentations on theory and practice, and engage with individual and group tutorial activity to apply and deepen learning. Additional reading material and activities will be provided weekly via the VLE to support students to engage more thoroughly with the topics presented. Students will also spend time asynchronously developing their PDP during each week of study.
