Summary of Module

In 2017 China overtook Hollywood to become the largest film market in the world. An increasing number of movies are being made with the South East Asian market in mind. At the same time, China and other South East Asian film hubs are looking to produce product for the global market. Against this changing global backdrop, this module provides an opportunity for the film scholar and filmmaker to expand and develop their knowledge of one of the world's richest and most influential film cultures.

This module explores the global impact of selected Asian film cultures and gives consideration to social and political changes impacting on a range of Asian film cultures such as those of Hong Kong, China, South Korea, Taiwan, Japan and Thailand.

This module develops student's knowledge and understanding of an important area of world cinema and extends their engagement with issues of national and international film culture. Although prior familiarity with Asian film cultures is not necessary, students will be expected to be fully cognisant of the appropriate critical and discursive parameters framing discussion of national, transnational and world cinema. As such this module will draw upon existing knowledge of established debates, principles and concepts, including those pertaining to issues of authorship, genre, performance and national cinema.

• To critically examine the film culture of specific East Asian countries through discussion and analysis of individual films that might be described as 'groundbreaking', 'innovative', 'seminal'.

Learning:

Other:

Blended
A mode of delivery of a module or a programme that involves online and face-to-face delivery of learning, teaching and assessment activities, student support and feedback. A programme may be considered "blended" if it includes a combination of face-to-face, online and blended modules. If an online programme has any compulsory face-to-face and campus elements it must be described as blended with clearly articulated delivery information to manage student expectations
Fully Online
Instruction that is solely delivered by web-based or internet-based technologies. This term is used to describe the previously used terms distance learning and e learning.
HybridC
Online with mandatory face-to-face learning on Campus
HybridO
Online with optional face-to-face learning on Campus
Work-based Learning
Learning activities where the main location for the learning experience is in the workplace.
Campus(es) for Module Delivery
The module will normally be offered on the following campuses / or by Distance/Online Learning: (Provided viable student numbers permit) (tick as appropriate)

Learning and Teaching

Learning and Teaching on this module will be a combination of lectures delivered by the Filmmaking &

Screenwriting team, seminar-based discussions, screenings of relevant selected films and independent study. Seminar-based discussions will equip students with skills in observation, description and interpretation, enabling them to produce written responses required by the assessable elements of the module. Students will be expected to take part in seminar discussion in a productive and self-motivated manner, for example coming to seminar prepared to lead discussion on a set topic. Lectures will demonstrate and exemplify how a range of methodological approaches can be applied to the study of Asian film cultures providing students with the necessary tools required to undertake the assessment tasks. Screenings will support and facilitate seminar discussion and the lecture programme. Independent study will be driven by the specific interests of the student and will take as a starting point the programme of guided reading distributed at the start of the module (emphasising the importance of primary and secondary reading material, journal articles and popular film reviews). Students will also be encouraged to use independent study time to familiarise themselves with the full range of films cited but not screened (as a result of time restrictions) during the course of the module.

Film screenings followed by discussion will form one of the core learning activities.

Learning Activities During completion of this module, the learning activities undertaken to achieve the module learning outcomes are stated below:	Normally totalling 200 hours): (Note: Learning hours include both contact hours and hours spent on other learning activities)
Lecture/Core Content Delivery	36
Tutorial/Synchronous Support Activity	36
Asynchronous Class Activity	36
Independent Study	92
	Hours Total 200

Assessment: (also refer to Assessment Outcomes Grids below)

This section should make transparent what assessment categories form part of this module (stating what % contributes to the final mark).

Maximum of 3 main assessment categories can be identified (which may comprise smaller elements of assessment).

NB: The 30% aggregate regulation (Reg. 3.9) (40% for PG) for each main category must be taken into account. When using PSMD, if all assessments are recorded in the one box, only one assessment grid will show and the 30% (40% at PG) aggregate regulation will not stand. For the aggregate regulation to stand, each component of assessment must be captured in a separate box.

Please provide brief information about the overall approach to assessment that is taken within the module. In order to be flexible with assessment delivery, be brief, but do state assessment type (e.g. written assignment rather than "essay" / presentation, etc.) and keep the detail for the module handbook. Click or tap here to enter text.

Assessment 1 Creative Output 40% weighting

Assessment 2 Written Coursework 60% weighting

- (N.B. (i) Assessment Outcomes Grids for the module (one for each component) can be found below which clearly demonstrate how the learning outcomes of the module will be assessed.
- (ii) An indicative schedule listing approximate times within the academic calendar when assessment is likely to feature will be provided within the Student Module Handbook.)
