Summary of Module

This module will train you in social science and applied research methods, as well as educate you in key elements of professional practice. You will learn to design, manage, and execute a public administration and policy project independently and in timely fashion. The module will foster a critical, as well as decolonized, understanding of quantitative and qualitative research strategies, with a particular focus on comparative methods, and will assist in developing your professional profile, as well as critically develop your learning and writing skills. You will be able to choose one of two pathways: a) research dissertation in the form of a journal article; b) applied public administration & policy project - e.g. analysis of a practical policy issue for a client. The professional project runs throughout the duration of your postgraduate studies.

At the start of the programme (first trimester of study) you will follow compulsory academic skills and English for Academic Purposes (EAP) classes that will help you transition in the postgraduate learning environment in UWS. You will then be introduced to the methods necessary to implement your project (eg social science research methods, applied policy analysis methods etc) and you will be trained in professional practice.

Mid-way through the programme (second trimester of study) you will be guided by a supervisor who will help you prepare your project.

During the last trimester you will implement your project under the guidance of your supervisor.

[1] Where contact hours are synchronous/ live and take place fully on campus. Campus-based learning is focused on providing an interactive learning experience supported by a range of digitally-enabled asynchronous learning opportunities including learning materials, resources, and opportunities provided via the virtual learning environment. On-campus contact hours will be clearly articulated to students.

[2] The module includes a combination of synchronous/ live on-campus and online learning events. These will be supported by a range of digitally-enabled asynchronous learning opportunities including learning materials, resources, and opportunities provided via the virtual learning environment. On-campus and online contact hours will be clearly articulated to students.

[3] Where all learning is solely delivered by web-based or internet-based technologies and the participants can engage in all learning activities through these means. All required contact hours will be clearly articulated to students.

[4] Learning activities where the main location for the learning experience is in the workplace. All required contact hours, whether online or on campus, will be clearly articulated to students

Practice: Applied Knowledge and Understanding	SCQF Level 11 Identify, conceptualise, and define abstract problems and issues. Apply critical analysis, evaluation and synthesis to professional practice, applied and/or social science research issues and projects; Develop original and creative responses to problems and issues; Plan and execute a significant applied policy or research project.
Generic Cognitive skills	SCQF Level 11 Develop a range of academic and professional skills including those relevant to critical reflection on assessing evidence. Identify, conceptualize and define new and abstract problems and issues. Deal with complex issues and make informed judgements in the absence of complete or consistent information.
Communication, ICT and Numeracy Skills	SCQF Level 11 Use a wide range of ICT applications to support and enhance your professional practice and research project work at this level, as well as adjust features to suit purpose. Use a wide array of routine professional skills and a range of routine and advanced applied and research skills as appropriate to professional public administration and policy practice, and social science research practice. Communicate using appropriate methods to a range of audiences.
Autonomy, Accountability and Working with Others	SCQF Level 11 Exercise substantial autonomy and initiative in research activities and professional practice. Take responsibility for own research and applied work. Manage complex ethical and professional issues and make informed judgements where such issues are not addressed by current codes and standards. Learn to reflect on your role as practitioner, researcher and critical thinker via extensive independent work.

Attendance and Engagement Requirements

In line with the Student Attendance and Engagement Procedure, Students are academically engaged if they are regularly attending and participating in timetabled on-campus and online teaching sessions, asynchronous online learning activities, course-related learning resources, and complete assessments and submit these on time.

For the purposes of this module, academic engagement equates to the following:

This module requires attendance and active student engagement. In-class activities are formative assignments geared towards accomplishing the learning outcomes. As per UKVI regulations students have to attend all classes (see academic-engagement- and-attendance-procedure.pdf (uws.ac.uk)). If a student will not be able to attend a class, the student must contact the module lecturer and coordinator beforehand.

Additionally, this module requires an individual supervision attendance and progress report written by the student and signed-off by the supervisor. The report is tabled to ESS VISA monthly.

Equality and Diversity

The University's Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Procedure can be accessed at the following link: UWS Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Code.

The module is also in line with the MPA programme EDI policy meaning that it has included inclusivity in four areas: a) Designing course material b) Inclusive Teaching in class c) Assessment and d) Providing extra support to the students. Added to the above, the module is foundational for postgraduate studies as it helps students from different linguistic, cultural and learning backgrounds transition to postgraduate education in the UK at UWS. The module includes compulsory academic skills and English for Academic Purposes (EAP) classes, which are both taught at the start of the MPA programme. Last, the module takes a decolonized approach to research methods. While doing research students are taught to exercise critical reflexivity, reciprocity and respect for self-determination, embrace "Other(ed)" ways of knowing and embody a transformative praxis. Specific literature is provided on decolonized research practice.

(N.B. Every effort will be made by the University to accommodate any equality and diversity issues brought to the attention of the School)
