Summary of Module

The last decade has brought major paradigm shifts in public service provision and citizenservice provider interaction. A changing, highly diverse citizenry and the circumstances surrounding services provided by public and nonprofit organizations such as budget cuts, restructuring, pandemics, or natural disasters amplify the need for basic managerial and leadership skills. This module focuses on real-life skills necessary for a career in the public service, or the nonprofit sector, such as creating self-awareness, and empathy to understand group dynamics and create productive communication and functioning teams. Further goals are understanding motivation, stress factors, power structures and leadership, decision making and conflict management in conjunction with good governance practices in public organizations.

Ideally you should be able to foster innovation and creativity and positive change to reflect diversity, equality, and inclusion in public organizations. This module aligns with the broader aims of UN SDG 16 to promote build effective, accountable, and inclusive institutions at all levels.

The organization and management knowledge discourse is dominated by Western theories. The approach for an inclusive and decolonised curriculum taken here is not to reject Western theories but rather resituating them in ways that the power structures shaping the narrative are challenged and the contribution of the 'subaltern' is acknowledged. This includes but is not limited to acknowledging non-western knowledge systems and management practices and incorporate theories and practices from the Global South to create a more inclusive and holistic understanding of management.

Attendance and Engagement Requirements

In line with the Student Attendance and Engagement Procedure, Students are academically engaged if they are regularly attending and participating in timetabled oncampus and online teaching sessions, asynchronous online learning activities, course-related learning resources, and complete assessments and submit these on time.

For the purposes of this module, academic engagement equates to the following:

This module requires attendance and active student engagement. In-class activities are formative assignments geared towards accomplishing the learning outcomes. As per UKVI regulations students must attend all classes (see academic-engagement-and-attendance-procedure.pdf (uws.ac.uk)). Students not able to attend a class must contact the module lecturer and coordinator beforehand via email.

Equality and Diversity

The University's Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Procedure can be accessed at the following link: UWS Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Code.

The module also abides to the MPA programme EDI (Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion) policy mapping inclusivity in four areas:

- a) Designing course material
- b) Inclusive Teaching in class
- c) Assessment and
- d) Providing extra support to the students.

Additionally, this module embeds advancing and promoting equality and diversity in all aspects of the learning activities and by doing so aims to establish an inclusive culture, free from discrimination and based upon the values of fairness, dignity, and respect. Ethics, compassion, social justice, and respect are some of the core values of the public service profession, and constitute alongside equality, diversity, and inclusiveness the ethos of this module.

The module places particular focus on decolonisation in its narrative, theories, accounts, and perspectives engaged. Furthermore, the module actively aspires to the creation of plural, de-hierarchised learning space(s), treating everyone with dignity and presupposing the intellectual equality of everyone.

(N.B. Every effort will be made by the University to accommodate any equality and diversity issues brought to the attention of the School)
