Module Descriptor

Session: 202425

Title of Module: Crisis and Communication
Code: SSPG11017	SCQF Level: 11 (Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework)	Credit Points: 20	ECTS: 10 (European Credit Transfer Scheme)
School:	School of Education and Social Sciences
Module Co-ordinator:	A Petrou
Summary of Module
The module provides students a critical understanding of the communication issues before, during and after a crisis, and aims to let students reflect on effective policy and decision making. Students will learn how to apply different methodological approaches in a rigorous manner to study crisis communication and demonstrate awareness of the limitations of each approach. Furthermore, students are provided with an opportunity to consider key problems in the practice of crisis communication, including the influence of new communication technologies, and the global, 'wicked' character of crisis management. The module then turns to examine the practice of crisis communication in a more focused manner. Students will learn about crisis communication in different organizational and political contexts, using case studies about the oil industry, and educational settings. Students will experience a series of lectures, and class discussions, and student learning is elicited through group exercises, class presentations, a simulation, and essay writing. The simulation will consider a crisis in an international organisation. Students will role-play the events as they unfold in the organisation and will discuss how to successfully engage in crisis communication. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Introduction to crisis communication</li> <li>• Communication before, during and after a Crisis</li> <li>• Methodological approaches to crisis communication (case studies; textual analysis; content analysis; experimental)</li> <li>• Technology and Crisis Communication</li> <li>• The Global dimension of Crisis Communication</li> <li>• Crisis Communication in Organizational Contexts (Oil Industry; Education)</li> </ul>
