Summary of Module
This module examines the intersection of practice and policy in shaping children's experiences of justice and diversity. Students will critically explore how prejudice, discrimination, and stereotypes influence childhood and consider the broader concepts of poverty, class, gender, race, LGBTQ+ identities, and disability. The relevance of these factors to ethical and justice-oriented practices within childhood will be analyzed. Through engagement with contemporary policy and practice frameworks, students will reflect on the values underpinning approaches to justice in childhood. They will evaluate their own perspectives and professional responsibilities in addressing ethical and social justice issues within diverse childhood contexts. They will explore the role of self-evaluation, professional dialogue, and practice monitoring in fostering ethical, inclusive, and socially just environments for children. Learning and Teaching
In line with current learning and teaching principles, a 20-credit module includes 200 learning hours, normally including a minimum of 36 contact hours and maximum of 48 contact hours. Use of VLE, Interactive Whiteboards, online tutor/student-led discussions, and individual and group tasks. Lectures, tutorials, student-led seminars, group work, role-play, presentations, workshops, and problem-based learning will be used to develop student learning. Attendance and Engagement Requirements

In line with the Student Attendance and Engagement Procedure, Students are academically engaged if they are regularly attending and participating in timetabled on-campus and online teaching sessions, asynchronous online learning activities, course-related learning resources, and complete assessments and submit these on time.

For the purposes of this module, academic engagement equates to the following:

The university is committed to providing a supportive learning environment that actively facilitates student success. In this module, there is a high degree of student-led flexibility. You are academically engaged if you are regularly engaged with scheduled live sessions on-campus and online, including engaging with online learning activities in your own time, course-related learning resources, and with timely completion and submission of assessments.

Whilst we understand that there may be times when conflicting priorities make participation challenging, for you to gain the most from this module it is recommended that you participate in all scheduled live classes and complete your self-directed learning activities in a timely manner.

It may be difficult to pass the assessment associated with this module if you are not regularly engaging with the module work and live classes. We may reach out to check how things are going and offer support if we observe that you have not been attending sessions or completing online activities.

Equality and Diversity

The University's Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Procedure can be accessed at the following link: UWS Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Code.

In line with current legislation (Equality Act, 2010) and the UWS Equality, Diversity, and Human Rights Code, our modules are accessible and inclusive, with reasonable adjustment for different needs where appropriate. Module materials comply with University guidance on inclusive learning and teaching, and specialist assistive equipment, support provision and adjustment to assessment practice will be made in accordance with UWS policy and regulations. Where modules require practical and/or laboratory based learning or assessment required to meet accrediting body requirements the University will make reasonable adjustment such as adjustable height benches or assistance of a 'buddy' or helper.
