Summary of Module
It is suggested that 20% of the UK workforce is neurodivergent and while some organisations recognise the advantages of neuroinclusivty in the workplace and support individual differences, the workplace often fails to provide a neuroinclusive environment. This can lead to decreased team morale, increased stress and burnout and can help explain why many neurodivergent employees experience barriers to finding and maintaining employment. This module with begin the journey of understanding neurodiversity in the workplace with 3 broad themes 1. Understanding neurodiversity 2. Traditional barriers to an inclusive workplace 3. Individual differences in the workplace

Indicative Resources
The following materials form essential underpinning for the module content and ultimately for the learning outcomes: Kirby, A. & Smith, T. (2021). Neurodiversity at Work. London: Kogan Page. Kahlow, J. A. (Ed.). (2022). Cases on Organizational Communication and Understanding Understudied Groups. IGI Global. https://doi.org/10.4018/978-1-6684-3753-7 Cross, C., & Carbery, R. (2016). Organisational behaviour: An introduction. New York, NY https://www.cipd.org/uk/knowledge/guides/neuroinclusion-work/
(N.B. Although reading lists should include current publications, students are advised (particularly for material marked with an asterisk*) to wait until the start of session for confirmation of the most up-to-date material)

Attendance and Engagement Requirements
In line with the Student Attendance and Engagement Procedure, Students are academically engaged if they are regularly attending and participating in timetabled on-campus and online teaching sessions, asynchronous online learning activities, course-related learning resources, and complete assessments and submit these on time. For the purposes of this module, academic engagement equates to the following: The university is committed to providing a supportive learning environment that actively facilitates student success. In this module, there is a high degree of student-led flexibility. You are academically engaged if you are regularly engaged with scheduled live sessions on campus, including engaging with online learning activities in your own time, course-related learning resources, and with timely completion and submission of assessments.

Whilst we understand that there may be times when conflicting priorities make participation challenging, for you to gain the most from this module it is recommended that you participate in all scheduled live classes and complete your self-directed learning activities in a timely manner.

It may be difficult to pass the assessments associated with this module if you are not regularly engaging with the module work and live classes. We may reach out to check how things are going and offer support if we observe that you have not been attending sessions or completing online activities.

Equality and Diversity

The University's Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Procedure can be accessed at the following link: UWS Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Code.

In line with current legislation (Equality Act, 2010) and the UWS Equality, Diversity, and Human Rights Code, our modules are accessible and inclusive, with reasonable adjustment for different needs where appropriate. Module materials comply with University guidance on inclusive learning and teaching, and specialist assistive equipment, support provision and adjustment to assessment practice will be made in accordance with UWS policy and regulations. Where modules require practical and/or laboratory based learning or assessment required to meet accrediting body requirements the University will make reasonable adjustment such as adjustable height benches or assistance of a 'buddy' or helper.

(N.B. Every effort will be made by the University to accommodate any equality and diversity issues brought to the attention of the School)
